

They are golden!

Sowing seeds of encouragement to help others cope, recognize opportunity and succeed can be a challenge.

A person must realize the value of encouragement in order to offer it or accept it. One fact should stand without argument. Each of us can afford to continually encourage and not fear it will run out. On the other hand, money can run out. Money offers short-term satisfaction, peace and comfort. However, encouragement, whether we are offering it or accepting it, can result in long-lasting benefits. To someone who has learned its value can gladly say, 'it is golden.'

Count Your Golden Nuggets

As an author, I write to help others shape their dreams. I think outside of the box to create curriculum, write books, blog, train and coach individuals into becoming the best they can be. Once this happens it is smoother sailing through the streams of life. Be the master of your own mind to not allow it to harbor stinking thinking, sinking thinking or blinking thinking. Life does not stink. You will not sink. You will not blink and miss another opportunity. You have captured every thought, dispelled the negative and holding on to the positive. Life is good! Whether or not you have acknowledged and accepted it, you are a leader, an encourager, and a life example in some way, form or fashion. You have the potential of becoming far more than what others have accepted as the norm. Make the right choices and begin SHAPING YOUR DREAM! I have just spoken into your life. However, you must acknowledge the same, come into agreement with what was spoken and speak it into your own life as well! INCREASE YOUR NUGGETS by encouraging yourself and others.
